RUSSIAN NATION MUCH ALARMED OVER REPORTS FROM THE FRONT

APPARENT REVERSES OF CZAR'S TROOPS PLUNGES RUSS CAPITAL IN GLOOM

PETROGRAD, Feb. 13.—Gloom overspreads the Russian capital today. Despite the announcement that the Russian forces retired from east Prussia for the purpose of choosing their own battle ground, the public is showing great uneasiness over the fact that the Russians were driven back 80 miles.
The general staff declares that plans perfected during the early part of the war will be carried out. The semi-circular formation of the Russian forces recently extending from the Mazurian lakes to Tilsit was therefore changed without altering the general shape.
One end of the crescent rests in the province
Plock and the other in the province of Kovno.
The Russian offensive is progressing north of the Vistula, in the Mlawa-Sierpec district.
In Poland the Germans are being pushed back from the Bzura river, according to official statement, but the public believes much was left unsaid.

BUILDING PROSPECTS APPEAR EXCELLENT

MANY SALES THIS SEASON OF SINGLE LOTS TO PEOPLE WHO PLAN TO HAVE HOUSES
BUILT THE COMING SUMMER.

The indications are that Daytona will experience a good summer in the building line which will benefit all business to a greater or less degree.
This belief is based on the fact that many of the sales of real estate made thus far this season are of unimproved property and in most cases single lots purchased by people who expect to have residences erected ready for occupancy next winter.

There has been less speculation in property this year than last season when several auction sales of lots were held and lots were purchased in blocks of half a dozen or a dozen to be held for higher prices.

Already lots enough have changed hands to promise well for the building business the coming summer, and March, the month of the greatest number of sales, is still ahead.

BOARD OF TRADE HAD THE BIGGEST MEETING HELD IN A LONG TIME

SENATOR FLETCHER'S STAND

ON SHIPPING BILL ENDORSED.

PLANS FOR MARCH 12TH CELE-

BRATION—BY LAWS AMENDED.

Friday night's meeting of the Daytona board of trade was the busiest and most interesting held in some time. An unusually large percentage of the membership was present, and nearly all took active part in the proceedings.

Secretary Deacon submitted a communication from the Southern Commercial congress bearing upon the marine shipping bill now pending before the national legislature. Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, is the chief champion of the measure in the upper house. The letter urged that the local board of trade pass resolutions in support of the bill and in endorsement of Senator Fletcher's efforts in its behalf. This action was unanimously taken, and the secretary was instructed to immediately forward a copy of the resolutions to Washington.

In the letter from the Southern Commercial congress it was claimed that the passage of the shipping bill is a vital necessity to the commercial interests of the United States, especially those of the southern states, whose waterfront extends from Maryland to the western border of Texas.

The Jacksonville board of trade recently passed a resolution protesting against the employment of a non-resident architect for Florida. This was alleged to have been done by the state board of control, and the Jacksonville trade body is asking the local board of trade and similar organizations elsewhere in the state to also file protests. The local board did not look with favor upon the proposition, and further than to table the communication no action was taken.

A letter from the Palmetto club urged the board's co-operation anent the promotion of interest in the lecture of R. B. Watrous, to be given at the New Daytona theater on Friday evening, February 26th. The title of the lecture is "The Town of Today, the City of Tomorrow," and is to be given under the auspices of the club.
Mr. Watrous is one of the leading lights in the American Civic association, and his lecture is said to be one of engrossing interest. It was unanimously decided to formally endorse the undertaking, and Secretary Deacon was asked to notify the Palmetto club that as many members of the board of trade as could make it convenient would be present on the 26th.

The matter of the proposed March 12th celebration, which contemplates a general parade and other features on the ocean beach, in addition to the already scheduled baseball game between Stetson university and the Brooklyn teams and the Elks' min-an automobile tour to Miami, which occupied about a week. They had a very enjoyable trip and found the roads excellent with the exception of a section in the vicinity of Titusville.

GERMANY HINTS U. S. MAY GET INTO TROUBLE ACCOUNT "WILHELMINA"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The German Ambassador, acting on instructions received from Berlin today, urged Secretary Bryan to call Great Britain's attention to the German government's guarantee that the steamship Wilhelmina's cargo would be used only for the civil population of Germany, and impressed upon Bryan the advisability of accepting the guarantee, and suggested serious consequences may follow the prize court's unfavorable decision in the case involving the Wilhelmina. It is stated that the United States is vitally concerned in the continuance of neutral trade and "should not accept or acquiesce in any action by Great Britain designed to starve out the civic population of Germany." It is claimed that this would operate against the United States government. Germany is willing that consular agents of the United States shall supervise the distribution of the Wilhelmina's cargo after she reaches her destination.

TURKEY PROTESTS TO NEUTRALS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 12.—The sublime porte has forwarded to neutral countries a protest against Russia, on account of the alleged sinking by the latter of the American steamer Washington. The Washington was reported to have been sunk in the Black Sea by a Russian warship.

MARY'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH

AT NOON TODAY.

Mrs. Susanne F. Cole, of Washington, D. C., and Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, United States cavalry, were united in marriage at noon today at St. Mary's Episcopal church, the ceremony being performed in the presence of a few friends only, by the rector, Rev. Dr.
Robert McKay. Captain and Mrs.
Lee left this afternoon for St. Augustine where they will probably spend a week or more.

Captain Lee is enjoying a three-months' leave of absence, expiring the 15th of next month, and has been a guest at the Princess Isena hotel at Seabreeze, as has also his bride.

Captain Lee, who is a son of General Fitzhugh Lee, completed his third period of service in the Philippines about a year ago and is now stationed on the Mexican border near the Rio Grande river.

"AN AGE OF REVISION"

Written Especially for the Daily News
By DR. CHARLES FREDERIC GOSS
Author "Redemption of David Corson"

It is an age of ceaseless revision, of opinion and conduct, in every sphere of human life. To say that all our previous conceptions have been thrown into the "melting pot" has, finally, become a commonplace.

To choose an example of one of those ideas which has undergone the most complete reversal, take that of our conception of the cause of unemployment. Up to within the shortest possible time, the prevailing opinion has been that unemployment was an individual fault and that men without a job were the authors of their own misfortune. But, so recently as yesterday, Frederick C. Howe, commissioner of immigration sent the following communication to the board of estimate and apportionment, in New York city, and, so far as can be learned, its fundamental presumption passed unchallenged.

"If unemployment and poverty are social and not individual, then relief must be social and not individual. If men are out of work for no fault of their own, then they should not bear a vicarious cost for some one else. If the world-war, industrial depression, machine industry and the ownership of the tools and the land by an employing class prevent the worker from making work for himself, then the worker should not be sacrificed for reasons which he cannot control."

"The industrially weak," he continues, "cannot protect themselves and they require protection because of the complexities and impersonality of society. The employer is under no obligation to them (for he cannot create work), and, in consequence, society must step in and provide for them," (just as it has in so many other spheres, for the helpless victims of modern conditions).

It is taken for granted, you see, in this contention, that society is responsible for the unemployed classes and nobody raises a cry of denial!

If this ethical principle is finally accepted, such a complete reorganization of society and business must follow as the world has never seen and, that it has been accepted in the present emergency appears quite clear. If it has been accepted in an emergency, that it will ultimately prevail, in normal as well as in abnormal conditions, seems practically beyond a doubt.

What tremendous responsibilities this conception will devolve upon all governments, it is easy to foresee, and nothing is more amazing than the solemn, and unprotesting mood with which men are accepting such responsibilities in every sphere of life. They accept responsibilities for the care of millions of Belgians, whom the greed of a hostile nation is starving, with as little protest as they do of the victims of natural causes—flood and fire; earthquake and volcanic disaster.

All hail to the modern man; the essence of whose philosophy of life is—moral obligation!

ANTI-LIQUOR WORKERS COMING FEBRUARY 28

THREE-DAYS' CAMPAIGN BEGINS
AT NEW DAYTONA THEATER—

SPEAKERS INCLUDE EX-GOVERNOR AND A NOTED AUTHOR.

The Flying Squadron of America will train its guns on Daytona in a three days' campaign for the national abolition of the liquor traffic, on February 28th, March 1st and 2nd.

The Flying Squadron is composed of men and women who are visiting the capitals of the several states, national capital at Washington, the leading university centers and principal cities to the approximate number of 250 cities, to educate and enthrone patriotic men and women to the immediate abolition of the liquor traffic.

The first meetings will be held in the New Daytona theater Sunday afternoon and evening, February 28th, and the speakers will be Daniel A. Poling and Dr. Charles M. Sheldon. Musical director, Daniel V. Poling, with William A. Patton as pianist.

On Monday afternoon and evening, March 1st, Dr. Ira Landrith, Dr. Wilbur F. Sheriden and Dr. Carolyn E. Geisel will speak, in the First Congregational church, with Frederick Butler as musical director and Mrs. Butler, pianist.

The third and last day the people of Daytona will hear Ex-Governor J. Frank Hanly, of Indiana, Oliver W. Stewart, and John B. Lewis, of Boston. Miss Mullins will sing and Hugh Porter will assist the musical program as pianist.

R. S. Middleton, advance representative of the Squadron, was in the city Friday and met with the local committee on arrangements composed of the following: J. A. Lucas and the several pastors of the city.

The Squadron will visit ten cities in the state, beginning with St. Augustine and closing with Pensacola. They go from here to Orlando, and on to Tampa.

How Insects Breathe.

When a man breathes he uses his muscular strength to draw in the air, and it is afterward forced out automatically. With insects, as a German investigator has just discovered, this process is just reversed. In other words insects take in the air automatically and exert muscular strength only when they expel it.

Sympathy.

Sympathy with pain is not the highest form of sympathy. Anyone can sympathize with the sufferings of a friend, but it requires a very fine nature to sympathize with a friend's success. Sympathy with joy intensifies the sum of joy in the world. Sympathy with pain does not really diminish the amount of pain.—Oscar Wilde.

Called Forth a Protest.

Ralph Tennyal tells of a schoolboy in Sabatha who asked his mother to help him with a problem starting. "If a woman paid her grocer 50 cents a dozen for eggs," "Gracious me," said the mother, "I wouldn't work such a problem. Fifty cents a dozen for eggs! No woman would pay it, and I think it's scandalous to ask such problems; they teach one extravagance."—Kansas City Star.

Ventilate the Bedroom.

Sleep with the bedroom window wide open. The old superstition that night air is unhealthy even for an invalid is entirely false. On the contrary, night air, especially in large cities, is purer and better than day air, because it contains less dust and fewer microbes. To get the best ventilation have the window open at both top and bottom.

CUPID AT SEA

By OSCAR COX

Rufus Willard when eighteen decided to leave the paternal nest. Instead of remaining in the city of his birth or going elsewhere in the United States he decided to take a longer flight. He sailed for South America and, not content with remaining on the eastern coast, passed southward, through the strait and up to Chile. There he became engaged in business and there was every prospect that he would make that country his permanent home.

A man settling in a far distant land is not likely to feel at home with the people there and naturally longs for his old associates. After a sojourn of a few years in Chile Willard thought that if he had a wife—one from his native land—he would be better contented. He remembered one Leona Andrews, a very pretty girl, that he had formerly been "sweet" on, and it occurred to him to begin a correspondence with her with a view to marriage.

Miss Andrews replied to his letter, and he wrote again, the correspondence growing sweeter and sweeter till he made a proposal by letter, which was accepted. The young lady realized that it would be difficult as well as inconvenient for him to return to America to marry her and consented to go to Chile for the wedding. This was a very satisfactory arrangement, and Willard was happy over the prospect. He bought a house, furnished it and made all essential arrangements for his bride's reception.

Miss Andrews wrote him of the steamer on which she would go to Chile, the date of her departure and the date of her probable arrival. Willard counted the days till she should come and his loneliness would be ended. He had made a number of good friends among the Chileans, and they had volunteered to do all in their power to make the lady's residence among them a happy one.

One Monday afternoon the ship on which Miss Andrews was coming was announced to arrive the next morning. Willard made arrangements for a simple noon wedding to take place on the day of his bride's arrival, to which a few friends were invited.

When the steamer arrived Willard was on the dock, looking up to see his fiancée. He saw her standing beside a gentleman, and when she caught his eye, instead of greeting him with a happy smile, she looked embarrassed. Running aboard, among the first to do so, he joined the lady, who introduced him to the gentleman beside her:

"My husband."

The voyage had been a long one. She had met a fascinating man, and the two had concluded that the most satisfactory solution of the problem would be for them to be married before their arrival in Chile. Willard would accept the inevitable without unnecessary prolonged torture.

Thus ends the first part of this story. The second part is in this wise: Willard in order to recover from the shock bethought himself of another girl at home who might like a husband and even if he did bring her to a distant land and entered upon another correspondence with marriage in view. He was equally successful in this case as the other, and it was not six months after his mishap before he was engaged again.

A great deal of sympathy had been enlisted for him in his disappointment, and his friends were much pleased to hear that, after all, he was to be made happy. He announced that this time he would go for his bride and bring her back with him. A sea voyage was a poor place for constancy when there was temptation at hand. He had suffered once from this cause, and he did not propose to take the rub a second time.

Willard in order to get away for so long a time was obliged to take in a partner. This he did. And when all was running smoothly he set sail for the United States with the blessings of many friends showered upon him. The

A WOMAN'S WEAKNESS AND POWER OF MAN DEPICTED IN "TODAY"

BROADHURST AND SCHOMER'S
BIG DRAMATIC HIT TO BE PRE-SENTED AT NEW DAYTONA THEATER NEXT WEDNESDAY.

A cast more evenly balanced than any seen in this city in a long time, will be presented at the New Daytona theater on Wednesday, February 17th, when "Today" opens its engagement.
"Today" is the joint effort of George Broadhurst and Abraham Schomer, and had the distinction of scoring the biggest dramatic hit of last season, having remained on Broadway many weeks longer than any drama produced during the theatrical year of 1913-14. It deals with the congenial phases of mankind. Love, passion, fear, hatred, self-sacrifice and loyalty are all blended in an endeavor to portray woman's frailty and man's power. A young wife's lust for gaudy tinsel and a mad desire to gratify her social ambitions tempt her to betray the trust reposed in her by an unforgiving husband. In an instant, she is dashed to the rocks of destruction. The distracted husband, unable to save her with entreaties, destroys her. The denouement is electrical; the audience at the crisis being wrought to a pitch of speechless expectancy and quickening pulse.
"Today" is not a white-slave play,
or a red light drama, nor is it a drama of disease, unless it be that mental disease that afflicts some unfortunates—the mania for clothes, no matter the cost.
In keeping with its theme, the latest Parisian gowns will be displayed. The management was particularly fortunate in landing from France the advanced fall models before the war interfered with the trans-Atlantic traffic. The company includes George MacQuarrie, Helen Mc-Keller, Helen Judson, Amelia Mayborn, May Herbert, Charles Greene, Jane Wallace and Frank Kimball.

EVELYN THAW FEATURED
TODAY AT CRYSTAL THEATER
"Threads of Destiny," the five-reel masterpiece which the enterprising management of the Crystal theater has arranged to present here this afternoon and evening, is a picture of Jewish persecution in Russia, and running through it is the story of a Hebrew girl's tragic life—first in her native land and then in America.
After emerging unharmed from dozens of desperate situations, Miriam Grinstein—that is the heroine's name—finds happiness with the man
she loves on a ranch in Arizona.
Even to this remote place she is followed by her persecutor, who is killed by the explosion of a bomb before he succeeds in his purpose, that of forcing the girl to leave her husband and go with him.
Evelyn Nesbit Thaw is featured in the leading part.

Too Literal a Pupil.
My younger brother took it upon himself to teach a small boy how to count. After repeating the numbers from one to ten he decided to test his pupil. "Now, what's this?" he asked, holding up one finger. "A dirty fig-er," was the answer.—Exchange.

Shoe String Tips.
When the metal tips come off the shoe strings, wind the end of the string closely and firmly with stout black thread. Then sew through repeatedly.
A better tip than ever is the result,
and one that never comes off.—Home Department, in National Magazine.

SLEEPY BRITON DEFENDS WHOLE VILLAGE ALONE

Wounded Sergeant Changes His Opinion Respecting Recruit Called "His Lordship."

NOTED FOR HIS LAZINESS

Promise of Good Night's Rest Leads Him to Distinguish Himself in Charge on Village—Defends Bed
Against Whole Regiment.

London.—"Never again will I judge a man by his appearance," said a wounded sergeant, when asked for his most thrilling battle experience.
"When we started for the front we had in our company a man whom I simply could not stand. He was tall, well built, rather good looking, with light hair and mustache, and most awfully lazy. There was no mistake about it—he had wealthy parents, a man who had never traveled without a valet.

"On the moment of his arrival in our midst we named him 'his lordship,' and bets were made that he would succumb after the first day's march. Not a bit of it. It is true he looked tired at the start, but he looked no more so at the finish. But when we reached the place where we were to rest for the night, he calmly unwound his puttees, underneath which he wore real silk socks. We felt a bit upset.
Silk socks for a soldier are clearly against army regulations.

Manicures His Nails.
"But this was nothing to what followed. He got out a nice leather box, opened it, extracted some sort of instrument and proceeded to manicure his nails.

"All the boys gathered around him to watch the performance; but I put an end to it by promising him four days in the 'ordinary,' which he was to undergo after the taking of Berlin, for, you see, we could not very well spare the man just then.

"We were finally placed in the trenches. 'His lordship' did everything ungrudgingly, but he could not sleep without a pillow, so he paid four packets of cigarettes a day to a fat sallow and rested his head on the latter's stomach. But we began to respect him from the day when he laid low 16 Germans with 18 cartridges. It was 'some shooting,' and he did it as nonchalantly as if he were in a rifle gallery.

"Well, we left the trenches—that is some of us did, and some did not—and even then one day we were ordered to take by assault a village occupied by a Bavarian regiment.

First in Dash for Bed.
"To give added courage to the men, our captain said: 'You see these houses? There are beds in them, and these beds are for your use if we take the village.' Take my word for it, we did not lose any time, and if I did not hustle then, I never hustled in all my life. I was among the first to reach the nearest house—at least I thought I was, but when I dashed in I found 'his lordship' calmly stretched out on a bed previously occupied by a German officer, whom he had thrown out of the window.

We thought that we could have a good night's rest, but about three o'clock in the morning we were told to get up, as a German regiment was marching against us. I awoke my men, and all rose without a murmur, all except 'his lordship.'

"Get up!" I shouted.

"He opened one eye, looked at me and said, 'Not on your life.'

"What do you mean?" I was choking with anger. 'We must retreat; a whole German regiment is about to attack us.'

"If it is the whole German army, I will not give up my bed to them," he answered with some heat—the first time I saw him get hot about anything at all.

Holds Germans Off.
"I order you—" I started to say; but he shut his eye, turned on the other side and slept. I added eight days to his 'solitary,' and as I could not very well carry him on my shoulders, I left him to his fate.

"We retired upon an adjoining hill, within half a mile of the village, to await re-enforcements. At dawn our captain, who was watching the enemy through field glasses, exclaimed with surprise: 'This is curious! They have not entered the village yet. They content themselves with shooting at the houses.'

"I looked in turn. It was true, the Germans were held back by somebody, and every now and then one of them fell. And then I saw at one of the windows a white apparition. It was 'his lordship,' rifle in hand, defending his bed.

"Our re-enforcements arrived, we took back the village, and—can you imagine where I found 'his lordship'?
He was fast asleep in the bed. I shook him; he opened his eye and muttered: 'Bring me my coffee.' I gave him four more days of 'solitary,' and the general added an order to have him mentioned in dispatches.

"I suppose he is still fighting and doing good work, while I have taken the pledge never to judge a man by his looks."

St. VALENTINE

ARTHUR J. BURDICK

(Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.)

Sweet Love passed through the garden
And plucked a rose for me.
I took it, and I kissed it.
I send it, dear, to thee,
For, though 'tis fair and fragrant,
Its beauty is not mine.
Love, bear it to my dear one
And lay it on her shrine.

The rose is lacking beauty
When 'tis not shared with thee.
Its sweetness is but wasted
If known alone by me.
So Love shall bear it further.
'Tis thine by right divine,
For beauty's stamp is on it
And makes it only thine.

"I SEND LOVE TO THEE WINGING, TO SING WHERE THOU CANST HEAR."

Love paused beneath my window
And sang a tender lay
I bade him cease his singing
And fare him on his way.
That song, indeed, is wasted
Which falls not on thy ear.
I send Love to thee winging,
To sing where thou canst hear.

And if Love's roses please thee
And if Love's songs are sweet
I've songs to sing and roses
To scatter at thy feet.
And songs will be the sweeter
And roses seem more fair,
Dear heart, if one who loves thee
Can in thy pleasures share.

War Caused First Valentine.
It was at the battle of Agincourt in 1415 that Charles, duke of Orleans, was taken after a fierce charge in a vain attempt to retrieve the French fortunes of the day, and for twenty-five years thereafter he remained a prisoner in the Tower of London until ran-somed for 300,000 crowns by Philip the Good of Burgundy. In order to relieve the tedium of his long confinement the captive duke composed about sixty love poems, which, tradition asserts, were the first valentines ever penned.

Everybody's Valentine.
To you—somewhere,
Here—there—
Roses may bloom around you,
Maybe snow has found you
On land—at sea—
You don't know me,
Nor do I know you,
But feeling blue
I pen this line
To those who have no valentines!

ST. VALENTINE AS HYMEN.

Got the Credit For Helping Along Marriages Sixty Years Ago.

Just to show that Valentine's day,
with all its significance of betrothals and marriages, was not unappreciated in America in the nineteenth century it might be well to quote an advertisement which appeared in the Democrat of Feb. 3, 1853, in Wooster, O.

"The great increase in marriages throughout Wayne county during the past year is said to be occasioned by the superior excellence of the valentines sold by George Henry. Indeed, so complete was his success that Cupid has again commissioned him as his great high priest of Love, Courtship and Marriage."

Pepys' Valentine Day.
The immortal Pepys, who chronicled the gossip of England in the seventeenth century, wrote one day in his immortal diary, "I am also this year my wife's valentine, and it will cost me £5, but that I must have laid out if we had not been valentines."

Epigram.
Many a woman's beauty sleep is easily a cat nap.—Leggott's.

A Violet and a Valentine

By RUBY DOUGLAS BROWN.

Copyright, 1919, by RUBY DOUGLAS BROWN.

VIOLET HAD LEFT ALONE her pretty cousin and then thought the most satisfactory thing she could do was to write a Valentine. She had been thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

It was her cousin's idea. She had seen it in the paper and she had thought it was the only way of expressing her love for her cousin. She had been thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

She had been thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

She was thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

With Violet as she held the card, she was thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

She had been thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

She had been thinking about it ever since she had seen the little white card and single red and blue.

"What's that?" she asked, looking at the card.

"It's a Valentine," she said, holding it up.

"A Valentine?" she asked, looking at the card.

"Yes," she said, holding it up.

"A Valentine?" she asked, looking at the card.

"Yes," she said, holding it up.

A Violet and a Valentine

By RUBY DOUGLAS EVANS.
(Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.)

VIOLET SARGENT slipped into a pretty kimono and then sought the most comfortable chair her small room afforded. Already her tiny kettle was beginning to sing over its steady blue flame and the miniature table was gleaming with its white cloth and single cup and plate. It was her custom to eat her evening meal alone in her little hall room. But tonight—it was the eve of St. Valentine's day—she was conscious of a vague longing for companionship. And not even a lace paper heart had greeted her in the dingy hall below to tell her it was St. Valentine's anniversary. How completely the home folks in the western town had forgotten! It was true, she admitted, she had few home folks left.

She was roused from her reverie by a loud noise on the stairs below. Some with wonder as she beheld the bewildering array of unmistakable bride's finery lying about the room.

"There's—there's a lady and gentlemen below. They want to see you," announced Katie.

"Who are they?" Violet asked, trembling from head to foot.

"They said you'd know and—Miss Sargent, I—they came in a big automobile and—it's standing outside waiting for them now. The lady whispered to me to have you dress in—in your new clothes before coming down; that they would wait."

For a few moments Violet stood looking helplessly about her, the maid staring. At last, impulsively, she looked up.

"Katie," she said, "please close the door and help me to dress."

"Yes, ma'am, I will," said Katie.

It took half an hour to select the dainty clothes and don them.

"Now, Katie, will I do?" asked Violet, flushed and happy. As she dressed she had reasoned it all out logically in her mind, and the situation seemed as conventional as if she had always known this was to be her wedding night.

"Katie, I—I haven't said anything about this to any one. It isn't best in a boarding house where you know no one, but—I'm going to be married. I—I'll return and arrange everything with Mrs. Jordan, but meantime will you straighten my things and pack this trunk and my own with all but my garments to wear?"

When Violet reached the foot of the stairs there stood Bob, his eyes devouring her. He knew by the length of time she had taken that she had understood and was coming down to be his bride. He took the little gloved hand she gave him and led her to the dingy parlor.

"Violet!" cried Bob's married sister. "I have been nearly shaking to death with nervousness. I never heard of such a mad, romantic thing in all my life. Bob has the temerity of a brigadier general. Now let's hurry!"

And Violet was hurried off with her sister-in-law and husband to be to the little church where the minister was in readiness to make her Bob's wife.

"I knew you'd be more apt to marry me in this mad, unconventional way than you ever would in a sane and dignified fashion," said her husband hours afterward. "And I couldn't bear to think of your working here in New York alone any longer, even though you declared to me you loved it and—probably—would never marry me!"

HE TOOK HER LITTLE GLOVED HAND AND LED HER INTO THE PARLOR.

one was bringing up a trunk. Violet wondered whose it might be.

A thundering noise on the door startled her from her first mouthful of dinner. She jumped to her feet and, remembering her attire, opened the door on a crack to tell the expressman he was in the wrong place.

"Miss Violet Sargent," announced the gruff voice of the man, and he thrust open the door and deposited his burden in the only available spot in the room. Then without further words he was gone.

Violet closed the door and stood staring at the trunk. It was new and strong and large. And on it in unmistakable letters was painted her own name, Violet Sargent, with the address. The trunk was securely strapped and locked. Furthermore, it took up the only floor space she had in the room. But she was helpless. She could not unlock it, for she had no key.

A moment after she had climbed over it to resume her dinner there came another knock upon the door.

"Yes?" she called, hoping she might not have to scale the trunk again.

"Miss Sargent!" called a boy.

Violet opened the door to receive a note addressed to her. She signed for it and closed the door again. It was addressed in typewriting and was bulky. There was no clew to the sender on the envelope.

She tore open the message and beheld a trunk key folded within a typewritten note which said, "This is the key to your valentine."

The inside of the trunk was spacious and composed of many trays and sections, and as the girl opened one after another her color deepened and great tears rolled down her cheeks.

One by one she laid on the couch and chairs all about her the most exquisite of garments, from satin slippers of her own size to a wedding gown of creamy satin. In her wildest dreams in the days when she had been engaged to Bob Saunders, in those happy days before she had decided to come east and make her own way in the world, she had not fancied anything so beautiful. And who but Bob could have done it! It had been at a Valentine party four years ago that she and Bob had become engaged.

She was startled by a third knock at her door, this time a gentle, feminine knock. "Yes?" called Violet, drying her eyes.

"It's Katie, Miss Sargent," came in the soft brogue of the maid.

"Come in, Katie."

The girl opened the door and closed it behind her. She spoke in an awe-stricken voice, and her eyes grew wide

VALENTINE DAY PARTIES.

The 14th of February is becoming specially chosen for children's parties, at which St. Valentine rules supreme. The following hints for table decorations may be of use:

Get heavy red pasteboard hearts of the largest size. Take four of these and tie the points of the hearts together at the top with narrow red ribbon of the same shade; then set them up tent fashion in the center of the table. Through the openings at the bottom of the tent let the same narrow red ribbon extend to each place; on each end of the ribbon inside the tent tie the valentines for each guest. At a given signal you may allow each guest to draw forth his or her individual valentine.

The heart tent can be decorated also with small red hearts, all tied to the ribbon at the top and allowed to hang profusely in every direction at ribbon ends.

AID FOR ST. VALENTINE.

Old Time Books Instructed Lovers in Art of Writing Love Letters.

"Carvalho's Polite Valentine Writer; or, The Lovers' Repository," a little book published nearly a hundred years ago, contains "a capital collection of all the new valentines and answers"—for the recipient was in duty bound to respond to her lover's assault upon her heart.

The following amorous ditty in script was subjoined to a picture, highly colored, of a girl eagerly stretching out her hand to receive a missive held in the beak of a dove:

A Letter from the Youth I love,
Pray give it me my pretty Dove;
May Cupid both our hearts incline
To grace the morn of Valentine.

Briefly conclusive is this one:

Sweetly smiling, quite divine,
I chuse thee for my Valentine.

A sample of a reply for a girl to use to an unwelcome suitor is this:

Dear sir, you're so foppish
And scented so fine;
I'll not have a man monkey
For my Valentine.

Flowers of Music.

The graces—namely, the shake, the turn, the appoggiatura, etc.—are the flowers of music; and the clear, correct, and delicate execution of them embellishes and exalts every melody and every passage. But when they are played stiff, hard, or unintelligibly, they may rather be compared to blots of ink or spots of dirt.—Carl Czerny.

NEWS OF THE HOTELS

Col. and Mrs. E. P. Woodbury entertained a number of friends at dinner, Friday evening at the Ridgewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Milard, Mr. and Mrs. Griffin and Col. and Mrs. Post entertained a number of dinner guests at the Ridgewood, last evening.

Attractive favors and menus were features at dinner at the Ridgewood, Friday evening, in commemoration of the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

"Are you looking for a church where you feel at home? Where you can hear gospel preaching? You will be satisfied at the First Baptist.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Herrington, of Burlington, Vt., who spent the last two seasons at the Ridgewood, arrived yesterday from the north, and will spend the rest of the season here.

W. K. Weaver, auditor of the Southern Express company with headquarters at Miami, was a Daytona visitor this week, checking up the accounts of the local office. Mr. Weaver stopped at Schmidt's while in the city.

Dr. H. Hanson, of Jacksonville, and father, Chas. Hanson, of Sioux City, Ia., motored from Jacksonville, Thursday, and were guests of Schmidt's over night, continuing on their way to Miami, Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. W. Berger, of Weehawken, N. J., are registered at Schmidt's for the remainder of the season. Mr. Berger is president of the Bank of Weehawken, and is well known in financial circles in New Jersey.

Lincoln's birthday was celebrated at the Hotel Austin with a luncheon given by Mrs. Austin, especially prepared for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Parker, of Wilbur, were two of the many guests who enjoyed the luncheon.

R. Hakewessell, of Hartford, Ct., one of the largest dealers in coal in that city, is now stopping at Schmidt's. Mr. Hakewessell is well known to many Daytonians, he and his family having spent several seasons here.

R. W. Peake, one of the regular season guests of the Austin, is now at that hotel, where he expects to stay for the remainder of the winter. Mr. Peake is delighted with the new management of the Austin and hopes to spend many future seasons there.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Titus, of Athens-on-the-Hudson, were dinner guests at the Ridgewood, Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Titus are well known winter visitors of Daytona and have spent a number of seasons as guests of the Ridgewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Arnold, of Atlanta, have just returned to the Despland from a trip of a few days to Palm Beach, the three Arnold children remaining here, during their absence. Mr. Arnold, who has become a national figure as one of the principal counselors for the defense in the Leo M. Frank murder case, in commenting on the weather at Palm Beach, said that during the time he and Mrs. Arnold were there, a cool wind blew off Lake Worth almost continuously, and that they were glad to return to Daytona. The Arnold party will remain at the Despland for several weeks.

CUPID IS SENDING OUT MANY INVITATIONS

Sunday is His Birthday and He is Tipping His Arrows
With Postage Stamps.

THE SAME OLD STORY

World Will Do St. Valentine's Day Just as it Has Been Doing
Since the Game Was Begun.

These are the days when Cupid pastes postage stamps on his arrows and uses the mail carrier for his bow. Tomorrow is his birthday and all the world gets busy helping him to celebrate it.

The love-lorn youth sits up far into the night and labors o'er the sonnet to the lady of his dreams. The sweet young things look over the old letters and qualify as handwriting experts, in the endeavor to get a line on the sender of the package they know is coming round tomorrow. The small boy chuckles in wicked glee, for the days of getting square are at hand.

The teachers know what will greet their eyes when they open that small plain white envelope. The crusty old bachelor and the sour-visaged old maid hesitate before hurrying to the door to see what the post man's whistle means, for the faults and follies of humanity will bob up in hideous pictures, and the self-complacent will be put wise to the fact that, after all, part of the world is "on" to their shortcomings or their undesirable "long-comings."

But despite the comic Valentine, Cupid is busiest sending out lace-covered hearts, boxes of candy and flowers of all kinds, from the modest violet to the great red roses. And somewhere about each package will be found the omnipresent rhyme, which, on this one day of all the year manages to get a standing as poetry.

Receiving the Things.

Today there are more men than usual in the postoffice corridors, and lined up before the stamp window, and when one man meets his friend he hides something under his own coat, and looks silly, and laughs uncomfortably, and pretends he doesn't know that the other fellow knows what he is doing, or that the other fellow is doing ditto.

And tomorrow the girls have their turn. No matter what came along to keep them up a bit later than usual at night, they slip into kimono and hustle down stairs early tomorrow morning.

Parlor windows seem like magnets, and the dear girls, getting ready to be really surprised, peep around the long lace curtains and bite their finger nails, and when the postman starts diagonally across the street, they wildly dive for the door and get it open before he has time to have any fun blowing on his whistle or ringing the door bell.

Guess Who Sent It.

Then they rush off to the seclusion of their boudoir and open it. It may be only some celluloid thing, pink-tinted and adorned with white lace, that makes a frame for a little chap with a necktie worn around his waist, but they announce that it is "exquisite," "perfectly lovely," "so cute," and all those other things women always say gifts are.

Then comes the funny part, for the dear girls will sit down and actually convince themselves that they did not know who sent it. "I wonder, now, who could have done it?" That is what they ask when they trip down stairs again and show it to mother, and mother, being wise in her generation, pretends to know no more about it than her daughter, and puzzles, too, over the handwriting.

But the little god who is such a crack shot, even though he is blind, loafs around and chuckles, and knows his arrow went to the right heart, at least so far as he is concerned.

It is the same thing over and over and over, whether the valentine is paper, celluloid, candy or flowers.

Happenings at Night.

And tomorrow night, as soon as it is conventionally late enough, a young man just happens to "drop in." And the sweet young thing takes him into the parlor and gives him a place near the fireplace in a great comfortable rocker, and they discuss all manner of things with no reference whatever to valentines.

And mother keeps away, and smiles the smile that comes of long experience, for she knows that after awhile the subject will come up in the parlor, and that Ferdinand will manage to let Genevieve know he sent it, and that Genevieve will pretend she trapped him into admission, and did not know all the time that he was the donor.

Cupid, encouraged by the developments, will creep up between the two and slip Ferdinand's hand over on Genevieve's and await developments, developments that he knows are certain to follow.

Some Other Features.

There are some other features, too, that mark the day, for the small boy has his innings.

The old woman that chased him away from the corner because he made so much noise, gets a picture of an irate hag, and an old New England duckling stool.

The old maid gets a picture of a blonded female, angular and ungainly, with a green parasol and a set of verses telling how useless it is for her to hunt another companion than the helpless cat that purrs by her fire.

The crusty old chap that growls eternally gets his too, and the teacher discovers that little eyes have learned of her faults, her vanities, her little shortcomings. In fact, that is the mean thing about all these comic valentines, for, exaggerated as they are, they jar one into realizing that somebody is wise to him or her.

No Harm Done.

Yet no harm is done and after all, love, who laughs at locksmiths, but skidoos when he sees the butcher boy coming with a bill, rules the day.

The young folks have their valentines and the sweet messages that are all unprinted and unwritten, but conveyed rather through a wireless system connecting hearts, and their parents recall the days when they were going through the same things and having just as much fun as ever.

And grandmother, nodding there in her easy chair, dreams of the old, old days. These were the days when heroes came in knee breeches, wore silver buckles and powdered wigs. In those days it was worth while, and the valentines that memory sends are, perhaps, the best of all.

So, all in all, St. Valentine's day does a great work, for it lets the lovers tell sweet whispered nothings, lets the small boy even up old scores, and sends the world rolling along in a better humor with itself and the people on it.

Just a Sample.

Valentines, valentines,
Who can read between the lines?
Loving words look cold in type,
She won't believe you,
That's a pipe;
Valentines, valentines,
Some hack poet wrote the lines,
But what can tongue-tied lovers do?
That's why I'm sending this to you.

Will you get one under your plate tomorrow morning?

A valentine, you know.

This is the day when Dan Cupid gets about the worst deal he is handed at any time of the year, not expecting his busy days in June.

The lacy, frilly little missives with burning words and halting rhymes are displayed in every shop in town, and the dealers have been doing a big business.

The old significance of the day seems to have been lost in the shuffle, and this year some of the valentines have degenerated into nothing more than a postal card, with perhaps a "Teddy Bear" instead of Cupid.

The comics, too are still with us, in spite of the hammering they get every year.

MAYOR TITUS.
To him who rules the town is put
In type this little ditty;
We could have no better
Mayor, but Perhaps a better city.

Celebrity Forgotten.
It is remarked by the New York World that probably not one person in 10,000 passing through John street, that city, knows that it was named for John Harpending, a tanner, who lived at the corner of Broadway and Maiden lane 200 years ago.

Study of Farming in Denmark.
For about one hundred years Denmark has had a system of agricultural apprenticeship to teach the practical side of farming. The boys serve three years on farms in different parts of the country, spending one year on each farm and receiving a small wage. They report annually to the Royal Danish Agricultural society, sending in notes on their experience, instruction and observation.

PRURIENT PORTER'S
PUSILANIMOUS
PETTY PILFERING

Charged with "petty pilfering," Maley Roy was arraigned in the municipal court Saturday morning. The prisoner's guilt was established and Mayor Titus fined him $20 and costs, the latter amounting to $5.00. Then, for good measure, his honor tacked on a hard-labor sentence 90 days long. Conditioned upon the culprit's good behavior and ability to stay away from mayor's court for at least one year, the added punishment was remitted.

Roy had for some time been the Bexall drug store's colored porter, and the pilfering accusation grew out of his secret and unwelcome acquisition of quantities of alcohol from the drug store's supply of that highly useful but trouble-laden commodity. It was good grain alcohol--the kind that may be imbibed without great danger of incurring the need (that is, the early need) of an undertaker's services, and it is inferred that Roy enjoyed many a pleasant jingle before the inevitable calamity came along and cast a shadow athwart his happy meandering down the illusion-strewn trail of life.

IN COMMEMORATION OF THE BIRTH OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

In commemoration of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. and Miss Thorp, of Silver Beach, entertained most pleasantly Friday afternoon the Abigail Bartholomew chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

An interesting program had been arranged, participated in by Mrs. Esch, Miss Thorp, Mrs. Raynor, Mrs. J. D. Maley and others, the subjects being a charming glimpse of the frontier home and the influence of the mother; a resume of the life of Lincoln, a summing up of the qualities that made the great man; a number of incidents in his eventful career.

Captain Young, Dr. Bigelow and Doctor Mitchell contributed personal reminiscences and impressions connected with Lincoln's life and character. The program was followed by dainty refreshments and social intercourse.

"It is said, 'Nobody loves a fat man.' That isn't true, but certainly nobody loves a pessimist. Jesus was an optimist. Go hear about it at the Baptist church Sunday morning."

This Day Let Lovers Fond Entwine Their Hands, And Bless St. Valentine

How They Got Rid of Him

By MARJORIE CLOUGH

The village of Bubbling Rock—named for a spring from which gushed an abundance of pure water—was a very quiet community. There were a couple of dozen married couples with children—some grown to manhood and womanhood, but most of them still children. For Bubbling Rock was a new settlement in the new colony of Virginia, and old persons are seldom pioneers. The inhabitants cultivated the tobacco plant, at which they made a good living, and so long as they were free to worship God in their own way they were content.

But the peace of Bubbling Rock was destined to be interrupted. A man—an unmarried man—came there from Jamestown, who taught the men of the town to which he came games of chance. He not only won their money, but set them to gambling among themselves. This interchange of their funds with one another would not have been objectionable if it had not set them to quarreling. For there is nothing that will so soon make enemies of friends as winning each other's money. Instead of working the men were constantly gambling, and not only was the tobacco neglected, but not a day passed but there was a fracas.

When a number of men who had previously been fast friends had bloodied one another's noses and one man had been killed, the wives and mothers of Bubbling Rock put their heads together with a view to getting rid of the instigator of the trouble. The deliberations were behind closed doors, and the women were pledged not to reveal the plan adopted.

Those were the days when the population of Virginia was kept up and increased by shipments of persons of all grades, from the younger sons of noblemen to the most hardened criminal. The highest and the lowest met on shipboard and on arrival scattered themselves over the new country.

To the surprise of the husbands of Bubbling Rock their wives suddenly seemed to take a fancy to the gambler who had made all the trouble. They invited him to their houses, and one or two of those having the most seductive tongues held up before him the advantages of matrimony.

"Get married," said Mrs. Ralston, "and become one of us. It is only as a husband that you can achieve real happiness. This is a lonely country, and its loneliness can only be done away with by the companionship that is to be found in wedlock."

"Where shall I find a wife?" asked the gambler. "There are five men to one woman in the colony."

"Leave that to me," replied the lady. "I'll find you a wife who I will guarantee will change your life completely. She is coming out from England and is due to arrive within a fortnight."

The gambler seemed grateful for the kindly interest the lady took in his welfare and expressed himself glad at the prospect of meeting her friend.

Ten days later a ship arrived from England, bringing a cargo of women sent out to be wives for the single men of the colony. Mrs. Ralston boarded the vessel and was closeted with the captain for a few minutes, at the end of which time he summoned a young woman, to whom he said:

"You need not be put up with the rest for a husband. This lady will provide for you." Then he left the two women together.

Eunice Dargan, the young woman who had just arrived, was rather small and had mild blue eyes and golden tresses. She was the comeliest of all the women on the ship. Mrs. Ralston took her ashore with her and domiciled her under her own roof. That night she sent for the gambler and introduced him to her friend.

The next day the man for whom this gentle lass was intended discharged the cost of her transportation in to bacco and there was a wedding at the house of Mrs. Ralston.

That night the stillness of the settlement was broken by voices raised in anger emanating from the house of the man the lady had arranged to make happy. A man and a woman's voice were raised alternately in crescendo, the woman's constantly gaining the ascendancy till the sound of some heavy weight striking against the wall of the house put an end to the man's side of the argument. Then the slamming of a door was heard and all was still.

The next morning all the men in Bubbling Rock peeped from their windows to see what had been the end of the previous night's amities. Not so the women. They were all posted. When the door of the gambler's home opened the meek looking bride stepped forth. Then every woman in Bubbling Rock knew that the gambler had vanished.

When the plan adopted by the wives to get rid of the gambler leaked out it was learned that on the arrival of the cargo of women sent over for wives Mrs. Ralston had asked the captain for the one bearing the worst reputation of all. He had produced the blue-eyed golden-haired creature, who looked as gentle as a fawn. She had frondled the police of London more than any other person in that wild city. "To get rid of her they had sent her to Virginia."

The problem remained to get rid of the means by which the gambler was ejected. This was accomplished by giving her to an Indian chief. Then for the first time in her life she behaved herself.

Derivation of "Comedy."
Comedy, the anglicized form of the Latin comedia, is derived from the Greek komos, a festive procession, and aidon, to sing, bearing on the ode sung during the procession.

Old Time Detective Work

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

I have been a detective for many years, though now that I am getting old I seldom take a case, and then only one that promises to interest me. My leisure time I spend in study. And what do you suppose is the subject of my studies? I will tell you. I am searching the past when there were no detectives that I may learn how criminals were traced.

I have found a succession of conditions, beginning with confession by torture—to this may be added confession by influence of the clergy—and ending with our present highly perfected detective system. I regret to say that there still exists one relic of the practice of obtaining confessions by influence of the clergy. I refer to securing them by means of the "third degree."

A curious instance of confession I have found in a record of the latter part of the eighteenth century.

During the year 1790 an altercation occurred between James Thorpe and Pardon Winston in Bradford, a small town in Massachusetts. Robert Thorpe, a brother of James, came on to the scene while the fight was in progress and struck Winston on the head with a piece of wood, knocking him senseless. However, he revived in a few minutes, and the brothers, who had been friends of Winston, frightened lest he had been killed, assisted him to his home, expressing great regret at the occurrence.

Winston did not seem any the worse for the blow he had received and remained in Bradford some time after the scuffle. But one day he was missed, and, when months passed and he did not show up, among the various causes for his disappearance that were suggested was one that the quarrel between him and the Thorpe brothers had been renewed and the missing man had come to his death through their instrumentality.

However, since there was nothing but inference in the matter, the suspicion died down. Several years after Winston's disappearance Abner Twitchell, a citizen of Bradford, dreamed one night that the ghost of Winston had appeared to him and said that the Thorpe brothers had killed him, burned his body and buried the residue under a beech tree, the only tree standing in the back yard of his home. Twitchell gave the civil authorities an account of his dream.

At this point in my narrative it is well to remember the conditions of that period. The belief in witchcraft had reaped so many victims had died out among educated persons, but still prevailed among the lower classes. Today a belief in revelation by dreams, though not what it was then, is not entirely extinct.

The Thorpe brothers were arrested, the ground about the roots of the beech tree was dug up, and some buttons and the metal parts of a pair of suspenders were found. This evidence was considered so strong that the Thorpe brothers were urged to confess in order that justice should be meted out to each in accordance with what he deserved. James, under the incessant pleadings of his spiritual adviser, finally gave way and confessed that he had been the murderer. But later Robert confessed that he, too, had taken part in the killing and had done the principal part in getting rid of the body.

Now, if we consider the evidence in this case as it would be regarded today there is nothing in it. First, we would not accept the dream as of any value whatever; second, the articles found under the beech tree might have been thrown out in the yard or burned with other refuse under the tree and become mingled with the soil; third, we have numerous confessions in murder cases that are not true.

But in those days, when the people were emerging from a period wherein an organized court of justice would convict a woman of vomiting crooked pins and sailing on the water in a sieve, the evidence against the Thorpe brothers, backed by the confession of both, was considered quite sufficient to hang them. They were tried, convicted and sentenced.

One day a man rode into Bradford and while sitting around the tavern stove was told that the next day there would be a hanging in the town and he had better remain over and see it. On mention of the name of Winston he said that he had seen a half-witted man in Hadley of that name. A friend of the Thorpe boys was present, and he went to the judge with the story, asking for a stay of the execution in order that the matter might be investigated.

A constable was sent to Hadley and returned with the man for whose murder the prisoners were to have been hanged. The brothers were released and received an oration, the townspeople really rejoicing that they had been saved by a mere chance from having committed murder themselves.

The blow that Winston had received from Robert Thorpe had caused an indentation of a bit of his skull on the brain. Even nowadays we are never sure when or what vagaries may be caused by such a pressure, though it can now be removed by surgeons. Whether the surgical process of trepanning was done in those days or not I don't know. I found no record of the subsequent condition of the injured man.

Triumph of Mutes.
It was but the other day when the triumph of the deaf and dumb faced me. It was a ship just starting from Southampton to Canada. You know the unheard shouts during the last hour from the shore. There were two men, deaf and dumb, talking quietly with their fingers to the brother on land, who could reply. They were the only three that could talk freely among the unheard tumult.—London Chronicle.

A BUSY DAY ON THE GOLF COURSE

REGISTER AT CLUB HOUSE
SHOWED THE NAMES OF 39
PLAYERS DURING THE DAY—
SOME GOOD SCORES MADE.

Friday was a big day at the Clarendon golf course, the register at the club house showing that 39 players had been on the links during the day. This number broke all previous records for the season of 1914-1915, and goes to prove the popularity of the game in this locality. It also proves that tourists will play golf on a fine day in preference to automobiling on the beach or indulging in any other pastime.

Several good scores were made during the day. J. B. Kennedy, of Youngstown, Ohio, made the nine holes in 36, which was the lowest score reported at the club house. Later in the day Mr. Kennedy made a round, or 18 holes in 77. A. Zahner, of Topeka, Kansas, made the nine holes in 38, which was the next best score reported, and various other players were credited with scores ranging from 39 to 45. Deltrick Lamade, of Williamsport, Pa., made his first appearance on the links yesterday. Editor Lamade did not succeed in getting a low score, yet he expects to "stick" around the course until he does perfect a stroke that will cause 'em all to sit up and take notice.

Of the number who found their way to the links yesterday, many were young people, and for a time caddies were at a premium. Not until late in the afternoon was the course free from players, and Instructor Christie was the last man to leave the links, having been constantly at work since early morning.

A Stagecoach Wedding

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

I was standing in a room crowded with men and women in evening dress when I heard a cheery feminine voice burst me exclaim:

"Why, Tom!"

"What luck?" responded a young man, with blond hair, parted in the middle, and his chin held up by a very high collar.

"I don't know a person here," said the girl, who had spoken first.

"Nor I. I would rather have met you than own a gold mine."

"Isn't it nice to meet some one you don't expect, but whom you wish to meet?"

Happy smiles illuminated the faces of these two youngsters, whom it made me happy to look at. Indeed, there was one especial reason for my enjoyment of this pleasant surprise, for it reminded me of one that had occurred to my own family years before.

In the sixties—I refer to the last century—my father, then a young man, went out to Denver to grow up with a new town. Albert Reeder had gone there a few years before, with his family for the purpose of building a stamp mill on Clear creek, up in the mountains, and had become interested in the extraction of gold from ore. My father, who was as poor as a church mouse, found work in the service of Mr. Reeder and was sent up to one of his stamp mills, where he soon became superintendent.

Mr. Reeder thought my father one of the brightest young men in the world and was ready to do anything for him till he discovered that his employee had a love affair with his daughter, Agnes. Then he suddenly turned against him. The trouble was that Reeder had a prospect of soon becoming very rich and had begun to cherish expectations of Agnes marrying either a duke or a prince or something of that order.

The young couple were in a peck of trouble in consequence of the old man's refusal to consent to their union. Of course the matter rested with Agnes. My father couldn't do anything with out her concurrence, and she was in- disposed to break with her father. But her father must have been uncer- tain of her, for he ordered her to get ready to go back east to stay awhile with an aunt. Agnes seemed disposed to yield to his commands. She wrote my father that he might come down from the mill and say goodby to her. He did so and there was a very affect- ing scene between the lovers.

Inasmuch as Agnes was making her preparations to go east and it was supposed that she was bidding her lover a last farewell, no opposition was made to the two youngsters seeing as much of each other as they liked. They spent a whole evening together, during which Agnes told my father that if she married him her father would disinherit her and that she would lose a very large fortune. Her mother was bitterly opposed to her marriage with my father, for it was she who was determined to exchange the wealth she would inherit for one of those rascally titled foreigners who are in the market for American heir- esses.

My father was the more cast down because, while Agnes talked about her mother's wishes in this matter, he was not quite sure that Agnes herself was not inclined to the plan of marrying a title and was accustomed to do pretty much as she pleased.

However, there was nothing for my father to do but submit, and he said goodby to Agnes lugubriously. One thing he knew—if she was disposed to obedience he could not move her, and if she was not disposed to obedience her parents could not hold her.

My father, notwithstanding his em- ployer's opposition to his marriage, was continued in his position and the morning after his farewell left for the mill. He always rode on the outside of the coach and climbed on top, where he resigned himself to brooding over the severest blow one can receive, whether young or old—separation from a mate.

From Denver the road westward ex- tends for fifteen miles to the base of the mountains, then rises abruptly. The morning was bright to every one on the coach except my father, and those inside seemed to be having a hilarious time. My father thought nothing of this, for stagecoach travel- ers always become acquainted, and he supposed they were enjoying each other's companionship.

They were approaching the base of the mountains when a voice from below called out that Jim Harkaway—that was my father—was wanted in- side. Nothing was further from his inclination, and he refused to descend. But the request was repeated, and at last he climbed down and entered the coach. All looked at him expectantly, and one of the men said smilingly:

"Every one loves a lover. Cheer up, come man. If you must have a girl here's one for you."

He pointed to an old lady on the back seat. My father looked at her wonder- ingly, and suddenly she threw back a veil and exposed the smiling features of Agnes.

This meeting between my father and another came back to me as I looked upon the young couple and saw their expression of pleased surprise, only I fancy my father's was far more radi- ant.

There was a clergyman in the coach, and the wedding took place then and there.

To a Higher Court.

"So you refuse me?" said the pros- perous young lawyer. "Most emphati- cally," replied the fair maid. "Very well, I shall take an appeal to your mother. She knows that I have a lu- crative practise."—Chicago Record- Herald.

QUITS HUSBAND FOR TRAMP

Woman Twice Crosses Continent With Man Arrested With Her on Serious Charge.

Portland, Ore.—After twice crossing the continent in boxcars and eking out a meager existence as a tramp with Fred Halstead, Mrs. W. H. Slade, aged thirty-one, walked from Oakland to Portland, with Halstead and was ar- rested with him by Detectives Hyde and Vaughn, who charge Halstead with violating the Mann "white slave" act.

According to information received by Detective Captain Baty from True Van Sickle, attorney, of Oakland, Cal., Halstead caused the woman to desert her husband and three children at Oakland.

When they first fled, more than a year ago, Halstead and the woman worked their way to New York and made the return trip in a similar man- ner.

Mrs. Slade is suffering from a dislo- cation of one of her hips, the result of a beating administered by Halstead when he found out she had written to her husband.

Evidence intended to show that Hal- stead is guilty of violating the federal law was taken by the detectives and turned over to the federal authorities.

BOY HERO SAVES PLAYMATE

George Hughes, Ten Years Old, Re- cuses Companion From Wheels of Railroad Locomotive.

Washington, Pa. — Ten-year-old George Hughes proved himself a hero when his playmate, Paul Enoch, of the same age, became entangled in the wheel of a moving railroad loco- motive on the Waynesburg and Wash- ington railroad here.

The two boys were standing by the track when Paul Enoch slipped and his leg became entangled in the wheels of the engine. Before it could be stopped or anyone could reach him the lad had been whirled around twice by the wheel's revolution. Then George reached him and, grabbing his com- panion by the leg, pulled him free and saved his life.

The boy was unconscious when re- cued, but physicians, who were im- mediately called, said that his only serious injury was a deep gash in the right leg. George Hughes was pro- claimed a hero by the persons who witnessed the rescue. He could not, however, understand that he had done anything remarkable, and insisted that he merely grabbed his playmate and pulled him out of the wheel.

WOUNDED WANT LOVE TALES

German Hospital Inmates Are Tired of Reading Literature About War.

Amsterdam.—"What kind of books shall we send to the hospitals?" was the question dispatched by a Berlin charitable organization to the head of one of the German field hospital di- visions.

The answer came back promptly: "Whatever you send, don't send war literature. The wounded like best of all a good love story. The young men, especially, are rather tired of hearing about the war."

"It is better for them, too, that they should have a rest from that sort of thing."

BRIDGE PARTY AT RIDGE- WOOD THURSDAY EVENING

The customary bridge party at the Ridgewood, Thursday evening, was well attended, more tables being en- gaged, in fact, than at any previous card party at the hotel this season. The weekly card parties at the Ridge- wood are gaining in favor with the guests of the hotel, and are becoming more of an event each week.

The ladies' first prize went to Mrs. F. E. Pechin, of Philadelphia, while second was secured by Mrs. J. Zim- merman, of New York city. Gentle- men prize winners were M. W. Mills, of Toronto, Canada, and Arthur Titus, of Athens-on-the-Hudson.

CONFERENCE AMERICAN PAGEANT ASSOCIATION

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The American Pageant association is hold- ing the third conference here today. Special sessions will be devoted to the rendition of pageant music by chorus, organ and orchestra. Much of the business meetings will be devoted to the discussion of policies and of the subject of terminology. Among the subjects will be size, acoustics, land- scaping, entrances, gathering places, grandstand accessibility, etc.

ECONOMICS BUREAU PROMOTING MARKETS

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 11.—In the interest of lowering the high cost of living, Dr. Carver, head of the United States bureau of economics of the office of markets of the depart- ment of agriculture, will address the South Carolina Development and Set- tlement conference today.

A quarter of a million dollars will be spent in community im- provements by the Mountain Lake Corporation, of Polk County, Florida. These will include roads, parkways, golf courses, a club house, and other luxuries. The property thus improved is to be made the most attractive and complete winter home location in the United States. It will include the finest and largest body of orange and grapefruit groves in all the world.

Frederick Law Olmsted of Brookline, Mass., has charge of the landscaping. The groves will be planted and brought into bearing by M. E. Gillett & Son, of Tampa, Fla. Mr. Olmsted and the Messrs. Gillett come to the performance of their tasks here with world- wide reputations for suc- cessful achievements in their respective fields. At Moun- tain Lake their previous work will be eclipsed in that here they are proceeding on more elaborate lines.

The citrus groves, in ten- acre units, will be brought into bearing before they are turned over to the purchasers. No expense will be spared in mak- ing them superior to any orange or grapefruit groves that now exist. Around the lakes and on the mountain sides winter home sites will be laid out as a part of the general landscaping plan. These properties will be sold only to persons of unquestioned social position, insuring a community of the best type.

The Mountain Lake Corporation commands respect because of the standing of the gentlemen who compose it. Among the leading stockholders are the following:

FRANK S. WARDEN, president American Cyanamid Company, Niagara Falls, Ont., president Alabama Power Company, Birmingham, Ala.

JAMES MITCHELL, president Alabama Trac- tion, Light & Power Company, Ltd., New York and London.

HERBERT E. GOODMAN, vice-president and general manager Goodman Manu- facturing Company, electrical mining machinery, Chicago, Ill.

ELMER A. SPERRY, president Sperry Gyro- scope Company, New York.

SONG FOR SAINT VALENTINE'S DAY

I send my love across the night
To thee that art my heart's delight,
And, though the night be dark, I know
My love will find the way to go,
And, though the path be rough and long,
My love is leal, my love is strong.

What happiness if I might flee

A Romance of Moosehead Lake

By F. A. MITCHEL

Moosehead lake is situated in the northern part of Maine. The other Maine lakes farther south have for some time been overrun with city people during the summer season, but Moosehead, being farther away, still retains much of its wildness.

There once lived a trapper on Moosehead lake, a widower with a daughter who was his housekeeper and companion. Gertrude Fleming was the only comfort of the old man's life. She grew up in the wilderness, but her mother was a refined woman and had kept her child from that uncouthness common among backwoods people. Her father was aware that some young man might pass that way and pluck his wild flower, leaving him in solitude.

Gertrude occasionally accompanied her father in his hunting and trapping expeditions. She would take a gun with her, and several of the heads of animals that decorated their cabin had been brought down by her. But she was more fond of the lake than the wilderness and in her canoe would ride its waves like a duck. She dressed much like an Indian girl—that is, in gaudy colors, with her hair hanging down her back.

Arthur Brewer, a New York boy, was one of the first city men to discover the hunting grounds adjacent to Moosehead lake. He was a handsome youngster and a thorough sportsman. One October day—he always took his outings in the hunting season—he was standing on one of the arms of the lake wishing for some way to get across when a vision of loveliness shot out from beyond a point of land. It was Gertrude Fleming in her canoe. About her shoulders and fastened under her chin was a many colored blanket, a circlet of wampum bound her temples and held the feather of a bird she had shot herself, while the arms that swung the paddle were adorned with bracelets made from the antlers of a beast of the forest.

"Hello!"

The girl stopped paddling and looked about her.

"Will you put me across here?"

Without a word Gertrude recommenced to paddle, turning her course toward the man on the shore. On reaching it their eyes met, the man's expressing admiration for this human feminine contrast with the desolate region, the girl unconsciously revealing through her eyes that she had been suddenly caught by the engaging smile with which she was greeted.

Brewer got into the canoe, and Gertrude pulled him across to the spot he wished to reach. She told him that she lived near by and that her father had gone into the woods for skins. Brewer had put up a tent at the point on which they landed, and there he made his headquarters, though he frequently slept in the open. He had game in his larder, but no vegetables. Gertrude cultivated a little kitchen garden and had left from her summer stores carrots, potatoes and other vegetables designed for winter use. She offered to supply him if he would come for them.

There was a great difference between this daughter of the forest and the young girls to whom Brewer had been accustomed. Perhaps it was this difference, this novelty, that aroused his interest. There is no doubt that the picturesqueness, the unity of a single woman in a wilderness, contributed to his enslavement. At any rate, he realized at once that his passion was irresistible. Possibly similar causes affected Gertrude. They met near the beginning of the day, and at its end each was conscious of the unbreakable bond that had suddenly united them.

When Fleming returned that evening he saw by the flush in his daughter's cheek that he had lost her. His only expression of the pain the discovery gave him was a suppressed groan.

At Fleming's invitation Brewer took his meals for the remainder of his outing in the cabin. There was no effort made to conceal the situation. All recognized, though mutely, that two kindred spirits had met. Before Brewer's return to the city he asked Gertrude if she would go with him.

His words produced a sudden realization of the fact that she stood between a love on the one hand and her father and the life to which she had been reared and loved on the other. She gave no answer. Brewer did not urge her. He waited till it was time for him to go, then said:

"Will you come with me?"

Gertrude was standing between her lover and her father. The latter spoke no word. She looked first at her lover, then at her father. Suddenly she came to her choice. Running to her father, she threw herself into his arms.

Brewer, who had taken up his belongings, threw them on the ground.

"If you will not go with me," he said, "I will stay with you."

Brewer and his wife lived in the cabin with Fleming till the latter died; then the couple made a trip to New York. Brewer's father, who had disinherited him on account of his marriage, relented and furnished the funds for a comfortable residence that his son built on the site of the cabin.

The couple usually spend their winters in the city and the summers in their country home. But it was not till after the hunting season that they left the lake and the woods.

BOARD OF TRADE HAD THE BIGGEST MEETING

strels, was taken up and discussed at some length. The project was endorsed and the chair appointed a committee composed of Michael Sholtz, R. E. Stevens and W. E. Coursen, to ascertain what is necessary to assure the success of the celebration and to estimate its cost. The committee will report at the next meeting. Others who are working up interest in March 12th day are E. F. Ludlow and P. C. Rodgers. The two latter gentlemen were among the first to agitate the movement for a celebration.

Michael Sholtz informed the board that the war department requires that the bridge which he and his associates will soon begin building across the St. Johns river must have a draw 100 feet wide. Mr. Sholtz stated that inasmuch as the channel at the bridge site is only the width mentioned, it is almost impossible, except at enormous expense, to comply with the war department's demands. It was pointed out that the maximum width of the largest Clyde liner that plies the St. Johns river is only 40 feet, and Mr. Sholtz requested the board of trade to cooperate with him in his efforts to get the width of the draw reduced to 70 feet. To this the board readily acceded, and resolutions approving a 70-foot draw will be forwarded to Major Ladue, of the war department. The secretary will communicate with the county commissioners of Volusia, Seminole and Orange, and with the commercial bodies of DeLand, Sanford, New Smyrna and Orlando, asking them to aid in removing the difficulty which Mr. Sholtz faces.

Edward F. Oates' amendment to the by-laws, proposed at the last previous meeting, was amended in minor instances, and as passed provides that the board of trade may receive associate members (persons not residents of Daytona), and that annual dues for same shall be $5. Active members must pay $10 per year. Associate members may have the privilege of the floor, but no vote.

S. E. Bullard gave notice that at the next meeting he would introduce an amendment to the by-laws, the intent of which will be to allow the nomination of members for official positions in open meeting on the date of election. This would have the effect of doing away with the old rule requiring that names of candidates be posted seven days prior to election.

OCULAR DEMONSTRATION OF BUILDING ACTIVITY HERE
 An evidence of the building activity here was exhibited Friday when a long line of wagons, ten in number, loaded with cement blocks, passed along Beach street on their way from the headquarters of the cement industry of Volusia county, the A. Vande Vord cement block works at Daytona Beach, to the various building operations of Mr. Vande Vord. Daytona is fortunate in having up-to-date contractors to attend to its material interests while Commodore C. G. Burgoyne looks after the artistic improvement of the city.

REQUESTS MADE TO THE TOWN COUNCIL
DAYTONA BEACH VOLUNTEER FIREMEN AT REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING ASK FOR ADDITIONAL APPARATUS.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Daytona Beach fire department held Thursday night, the treasurer reported donations amounting to $10, as previously stated in the Daily News. This sum added to the receipts of the minstrel show and a contribution by the town council makes a fund of $52.70 now in the hands of the treasurer.

Thanks were extended to H. G. Politts for his services in helping to make the minstrel a success and to Messrs. Field and Pierce for cash donations. Various requests were made to the town council, among the most important being a suitable place for housing fire apparatus. Another request was to procure one of the Pullman car iron tanks for the

 WINS FIRST OF SERIES OF GAMES WITH NEW SMYRNA TEAM IN CLOSE-FOUGHT MATCH IN THAT CITY.

The Arcade bowling team was victorious Friday evening in the first of a series of three games with the New Smyrna team, the game being played in that city in the presence of a large crowd of interested spectators. The New Smyrna team is a strong one and the game was a close one, being won by the Arcade team on the close margin of nine pins. The total score by the New Smyrna team in the three innings was 2,292 pins, and that of the Arcade team 2,301 pins. The next game of the series will be played at the Arcade rink in this city some evening next week, the date not yet being determined.

SOLDIERS' KITS ATTRACTING A GREAT DEAL OF ATTENTION

The soldiers' kits, on exhibition at the Clarendon and Despland hotels, have attracted much attention, and Miss Margaret Rhodes has received quite a number of voluntary subscriptions to the LaFayette fund for the purchase of these kits to be sent to French soldiers in the trenches on the fighting line in the great European war.

These kits, which include a number of useful articles for the soldiers' use, are made of American goods by women reservists in New York city, thus serving a double purpose, as the women are given needed employment in the making of the articles of the kits.

Miss Rhodes is a Volusia county member of the Florida state committee of the LaFayette fund, and one of the soldiers' kits may be seen at her home, 360 South Beach street, where she will also gladly receive subscriptions for the fund.

whistle on the waterworks. The air whistle already in use having proved satisfactory, the council was asked to buy a similar whistle of W. Goldenberg for the same purpose, at a cost of $15.

Other requests were to have the town council purchase an automatic fire bell owned by B. E. Williams; to install telephones in the fire chief's residence and at the waterworks plant, also to fix a stated salary for the chief and to stipulate an allowance for members of the department, when on duty and for time consumed in drill work. Other requests were to make provision for additional apparatus, such as lanterns, fire extinguishers, ladders and hydrant valves for each hose cart.

Several other matters believed to be necessary to perfect a first class organization were considered before the meeting adjourned.

FOUR RINGERS ON STAKE AT ONE AND THE SAME TIME

Two of Capt. Joe Scull's horsehoe braves, while engaged in this interesting pastime on the grounds south of the city hall, Friday, pulled off a most unusual stunt. The braves, "Dakota" and "Indiana," in four throws each put two shoes over the stake, making four ringers at one and the same time, which surpasses all previous records made here, it is said, and will give the captain and his followers something to do in attempting to exceed it.

ENTERTAINED AT CARDS

ON BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. H. A. Intemann entertained at her home, 231 North Beach street, ladies at 500. Friday afternoon, being the birthday of the hostess.

The parlors were beautifully decorated with potted plants and flowers. Nearness of St. Valentine's day suggested the decorations.

The tally cards were red hearts. After cards the ladies sat down to a "Koffee Klatsch," the table being decorated with red hearts and red ribbons, and the favors being red hearts and red cupid baggies.

A number of the hotels from the north end were well represented.

The prize winners were Mrs. Robt. Ball, Mrs. Walter Kreitzberg, Miss Clarabelle Schultz, and consolation prize Mrs. L. Wilkins.

The non-players' prize went to Mrs. Fred Meyer.

SILVER BEACH AVE.
GREATLY IMPROVED

There has been a remarkable improvement made on Silver Beach avenue during the past ten days. The street has been widened to 70 feet, and sidewalks are being built on the south side and the street hard-surfaced with shell. With the palm trees in the center it makes of Silver Beach avenue the prettiest street in Daytona Beach.

City water, gas and electric lights are available on this street, and with the location only a few minutes from the business center of Daytona, it makes these lots some of the most desirable homesites to be found in this section.

Contractor Vande Vord has certainly rushed the work of building the sidewalks on this street, having built this week a five-foot sidewalk the entire length of this street, running from Peninsula to Atlantic avenue.

A great improvement is being made in this section, which is just over the south bridge from Daytona.

A card from Miss Ruth McNutt brings the gratifying news that her mother is now able to be around on crutches. Mrs. McNutt suffered a slight stroke of paralysis several months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O. Hinkley, of Chicago, Ill., arrived this week on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Putnam and family, at their beautiful winter home on North Halifax avenue. Mrs. Hinkley is Mr. Putnam's sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith G. Young entertained at cards at their winter home on Halifax avenue, Tuesday evening, in honor of their house guest, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Daley, of Lansing, Mich. Bridge and 500 passed the evening very delightfully, some 24 guests being present. Dainty refreshments were served during the evening.

Orders for job printing received at this office will be promptly executed and delivered to your address.

Mrs. J. W. Erregger will entertain this afternoon at cards in honor of her house guest, Miss Treack, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Miss B. A. Trask, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is the charming house guest of Mrs. J. W. Erregger, at her home on North Halifax avenue.

The fire engine and apparatus, which were temporarily housed in the Bernard and Butler garages on Ocean boulevard, were removed to the engine house on the town's property on Butler boulevard Wednesday afternoon.

At the regular meeting of the Seabreeze town council recently, a proposition from C. M. Rogers, civil engineer, to superintend the construction of the water system on a five per cent basis was accepted by the council.

According to instructions from the council the president of the council has entered into contract with Cameron & Barclay, of Jacksonville, to furnish the two-inch pipes and fittings for the Seabreeze water system.

A brief message from Miss Gertrude E. Mims, Mrs. H. E. Wakefield's sister, who was here on a brief visit, that she has returned to Atlanta, Ga., will be of interest to her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Johnson, who spent most of the winter in south Florida, and who are now in Daytona for the remainder of Mr. Johnson's vacation, were over yesterday visiting their old neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Rector and family on Peninsula drive.

Mrs. E. Butterfield, of Joliet, Ill., sister of A. S. Randall, will arrive Monday to spend the remainder of the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Randall and family in their new home on Peninsula drive.

Mrs. Chas. Clark came down from Jacksonville Wednesday quite unexpectedly, to make a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Freeman, and other members of the family at Pinehurst.

Rev. H. H. Bowen, of DeLand, was a visitor at the parsonage Tuesday, and was around greeting friends and looking after business. His eldest son, Herndon, who is still here, will graduate from the Seabreeze high school this term. Mr. Bowen will always find the latch string on the outside at the homes of his many friends at Daytona Beach.

Quite a contingent of residents and tourists from the Buckeye state are anticipating with much pleasure the celebration of Indiana Day, which will be held Wednesday, 17th, at the winter cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Van Nuys, Silver Beach Lodge, on Ocean avenue. The social committee is arranging for a fine program, and a large attendance is expected.

If you see it in the Daily News it is pretty apt to be just that way.

SEABREEZE COUNCIL MET LAST NIGHT

RECOMMENDED THE APPOINTMENT OF L. C. BURGMAN AS CHIEF AND J. A. BURGMAN ENGINEER OF FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Seabreeze town council met in regular session Friday night and set March 11 as the date for the annual election.

A protest against a public dock at the foot of Grandview boulevard was read and ordered spread upon the minutes, the council voting against the building of a dock at the foot of that thoroughfare. C. F. Burgman was selected to oversee certain repairs on Grandview boulevard for which $100 were appropriated to complete the work. C. A. Kenney was authorized to insure against fire the apparatus and new engine house.

Matters pertaining to election, such as revising the registration list and requesting the mayor to issue his proclamation calling for the annual election on March 11, and to open the registration books 15 days before the election and close the same 10 days prior to March 11, were acted upon.

The clerk was instructed to notify the mayor that the council recommends the appointment of L. C. Burgman as fire chief and J. A. Burgman as engineer. A suitable place for drying fire hose was ordered constructed under the direction of Chief Burgman.

Auction Sale of 100 Lots

Thursday, February 18--10 A. M.-2 P. M.

S. A. PIERCE, AUCTIONEER

HIGHLAND PARK--DELIGHTFUL RESIDENTIAL LOCATION

Spacious Lots On Gently Sloping, Naturally Drained Land, With Stately Oaks and Palmettos---Overlooking the Beautiful Halifax River---Within Easy Reach of Business District.

The development of Daytona has been so rapid during the past few years that the opening up of new residential property has been necessary from time to time in order to provide homesites for the ever increasing number of new residents who make this city their home for all or a portion of the year.

The more desirable the property, the more rapidly it is disposed of and the opening up of new subdivisions has made necessary the extension of the city limits in many cases.

Such a step is about to be taken by the municipal authorities of Daytona in extending the boundaries of the city to include the residential subdivision of Highland Park, which is now being developed and placed on the market.

Highland Park is located in the northern section of the city and fronts on Beach street, which parallels the Halifax river and along which are to be found some of the finest residences in the community.

Approximately 45 acres comprise the entire tract, although at present there are 139 lots on the market out of a total of 300 which will be improved and opened up as the development work proceeds.

From Beach street the tract extends westward to the line of the Florida East Coast railway, which passes along a natural rise or ridge of land, from which there is a gradual slope down to the water's edge. Ridgewood avenue, one of the finest residential streets of Daytona, extends through Highland Park and building operations are going on all along its length as new property is opened up.

From the highest point at the western boundary of Highland Park down to Beach street along the Halifax river, there is a natural fall of approximately 12 feet and by reason of this contour of the land, the matter of adequate drainage is easily solved.

As a matter of fact, no artificial drainage is necessary on this property, for Nature has attended to this important detail in a way that obviates any further operations in this direction by human agencies.

Originally the entire tract was overgrown with a thick growth of semi-tropical vegetation, live oak, pines and cabbage palmettos, but the development work that has been carried on previous to the placing of these lots on the market, has cleared off entirely all undergrowth and the smaller trees, leaving the ground free from stumps, brush, etc.

The larger trees, such as oaks and palmettos, have been allowed to remain to some extent, in order that they may afford plenty of shade for residences. Some thousands of dollars have been expended thus far in the work of developing the subdivision of Highland Park, and although these operations are not yet entirely completed, the aspect of the tract is exceedingly attractive from the standpoint of the prospective resident.

The spacious lots, each with its quota of stately shade and ornamental trees, front on streets that are being placed in first class condition. Hard-surfaced roadways of macadam are being constructed throughout the entire property, these thoroughfares varying in width from 40 to 60 feet; there are five of these avenues extending east and west through the tract and four running north and south, dividing the lots into blocks of regulation size.

Several miles of modern sidewalks have been laid in Highland Park and there are yet several extensions to be made as the remainder of the tract is opened up. These up-to-date sidewalks are to be laid along every street in Highland Park and are provided without extra expense to purchasers of lots.

In size, the lots in Highland Park range from 50 by 96 to 50 by 140 feet, thus allowing plenty of garden space if desired. Incidentally it may be mentioned that the soil of the Highland Park subdivision is excellent for the production of vegetables of all kinds and residents are able to maintain first class gardens from which to supply their tables during every month of the year.

With the incorporation of Highland Park within the city limits of Daytona and the consequent extension of the water, gas and sewerage systems, modern conveniences will be afforded residents in this subdivision, and as the incorporation is to take place this present spring, these facilities will be available within a short space of time.

Beach street, fronting Highland Park, is hard-surfaced with shell and macadam along the entire length of the property and is much frequented by motorists and vehicle traffic, as it is known as one of the most beautiful drives in Daytona. The beautiful Halifax river, lying directly in front of Highland Park adds another attractive feature, and, taken in conjunction with the stately oaks and palmettos which dot the entire tract, forms a most delightful picture to the casual observer.

Almost directly across the Halifax from Highland Park stands the Hotel Clarendon and the broad avenue leading from this famous hotel, across the bridge to the mainland, forms the northern boundary of the subdivision.

Although Highland Park lots have only been on the market for a few weeks past, there have already been many sales and several comfortable cottages and bungalows are being erected, so that active operations in this direction are not a matter of conjecture, but of actual reality.

Highland Park lies within a few minutes' walk of the business district of Daytona and as a residential subdivision, is highly desirable from the viewpoint of the prospective purchaser casting about for some location for a home.

Restrictions calling for the erection of residences costing not less than $1,000 each have been placed on all lots in Highland Park, with the idea of maintaining it as a first class residence section, unmarred by inferior buildings that would detract from its value in the eyes of prospective residents.

The price of lots in Highland Park is reasonable beyond a doubt and the sale of homesites in the subdivision is certain to proceed rapidly, judging from the headway already made in this respect.

Prospective investors in desirable residence property such as Highland Park offers, may obtain further details concerning the proposition by communicating with C. E. Rowland, the owner and developer of the subdivision, or with Bingham and Thompson, selling agents.

FRENCH SAPPER AT WORK

The great conflict in Europe has developed into a war of trenches, and the sappers and miners are a most important part of the armies. One of the French trench diggers is here seen at his work.

The Poetry Did It.
"I won't pay one cent for advertising this week," declared the storekeeper angrily to the editor of the country paper. "You told me you'd put the notice of my shoe polish in with the reading matter." "And didn't I do it?" inquired the editor. "No, sir!" roared the advertiser. "No, sir, you did not! You put it in the column with a mess of poetry, that's where you put it!"

New Industry for Canada.
One of the little towns in Ontario has organized a company for the production of candied fruits, like the sweets and preserves produced in France and Italy.

Beware of the Rut.
The deeper the rut the harder it is on the vehicle and the more it retards speed. Find a new way of doing the old work: be a road builder and not a rut maker.

On Wearing Goggles.

Safety Engineering has this to say about the wearing of goggles by industrial workers: "In order to reduce injuries to the eyes of industrial workers, two requirements are of primary importance--to provide the goggles which meets the needs of the operator, and insistence that the goggles be worn at all times when in the danger zone. The fact should not be overlooked that not only must the lenses be best suited to meet the conditions of work, but the goggles must not occasion discomfort. If the goggles cause discomfort to the wearer he is apt to remove it, and many eyes have been injured and lost from this cause. An entirely satisfactory goggles will seldom be removed by the wearer who appreciates that an eye can never be replaced.

Cleopatra's Decent.

Men who "read their books and bustled against each other to get a look at the girl on exhibition in one of the store windows were given the laugh by women in the crowd. The fluttering of the girl's parasol, and the flowing of her dress convinced the men that they were looking at a "living model," and it was not until they had gazed at it for some time that they discovered they had been fooled. By arrangements of fans the breeze gently blew the gown worn by the wax figure, and also her parasol. Her hair was blown about her face in a most bewitching fashion and more than one man exclaimed, "Isn't she a peach!" and discovered his error when the women in the crowd snickered--Worcester Post.

Jewish Flags.

The Zionists have adopted a flag made up of a white ground with a blue horizontal stripe on each side, and the shield of David in the center. In reference to the direction from the Book of Numbers, "Every man of the Children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their father's house," the Midrash explained that the emblems and colors corresponded to the 12 precious stones set in the breast plate of the high priest. The colors for the different tribes were as follows: Reuben, red; Simeon, green; Levi, tri-color, white, black and red; Judah, sky blue; Issachar, black; Zebulun, white; Dan, blue; Gad, gray; Naphtali, wine color; Asher, pearl color; Ephraim and Manasseh, jet black; Benjamin, all the above colors combined.
